METI, L-3 AND THE AACC ANNOUNCE THE RECIPIENTS OF THE FRANK LANZA MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP FOR THE 2010 ACADEMIC YEAR

Sarasota, April 5, 2010 – METI, the worldwide leader in medical simulation and educational software, L-3 Communications and the American Association of Community Colleges (AACC) recently announced the 25 recipients of the Frank Lanza Memorial Scholarship for the 2010 academic year. The scholarships, totaling $25,000, were awarded to nursing and health sciences students at community colleges throughout the country.

The 2010 scholarships were open to part-time, full-time and international students with demonstrable financial needs and who had completed 50 percent of their course work leading toward achieving an associate degree.

As a founder, Chairman and CEO of L-3 Communications, Mr. Lanza was noted for his leadership in business and for his numerous charitable works. Lou Oberndorf, Chairman and CEO of METI and long-time friend and colleague of Frank Lanza, initiated the endowment of the scholarship, which is equally funded by METI, L-3 Communications, the AACC, and Phi Theta Kappa Honors Society.

“I am delighted to be able to announce the first recipients of this important scholarship,” said Oberndorf. “At a time when the healthcare industry is facing significant challenges and shortages, we are proud to be able to support these young graduates entering the profession.”

About METI

Based in Sarasota, Florida, METI has been a leader in interactive human patient simulation since 1996. The entire family of METI simulators, including baby, adolescent and adults, are designed to mimic human medical scenarios including trauma, heart attack, drug overdose and bioterrorism. Today, more than 6,000 METI simulators are in use by defense organizations, medical schools, nursing schools and other entities involved in healthcare education. METI is privately owned by Lou Oberndorf and Baird Capital Partners (BCP) of Chicago.
